

Hermán Barahona

"The Latino Leadership Council is on the cutting edge of building trusting relationships with Latino families. Our Promotores serve and invest their time in the Greater Sacramento Valley with integrity, efficiency and most importantly with heart!"

Hermán is the co-founder and lead Community Organizer for the Sacramento Environmental Justice Coalition (SacEJC) - A leadership development team that coordinates grassroots voices dedicated to reverse inequities in historically red-lined communities.

His civics education began in 1987 at the age of 12 when he arrived in South Central Los Angeles from Honduras, and after 20 years of community work in Los Angeles and the Bay Area, he is proud to call Sacramento home. Hermán states, "The lessons that brought on my 'awakening' have come from the real stories of poor and marginalized people I have met over the past 20 years, and have inspired me to take on the roles in the community that I currently hold."
